Many people think that dogs can only see in black and white, but it is not true. Scientists find that dogs do see colors, only not like the way we people do.

For example, when people see a rainbow, they see purple, blue, blue-green, green, yellow, orange, and red. But when dogs see a rainbow, they see gray, blue, gray, yellow-brown, yellow, yellow-brown, and still yellow-brown.

Dogs see red and green as yellow-brown and they also see blue-green and purple as gray. It means that if you buy your dog a red toy, it will see it as an ugly yellowish brown.

It's because a human eye has three different kinds of cells. They can notice and discover color. Dog's eyes, on the other hand, have only two. This makes the colors they can pick up much more limited.

gray 灰色 human 人類 cell 細胞 notice 注意到 discover 發現 limited 有限的

William: Well, you can still try to get them from convenience stores like 7-11. They will have 400 tickets this Wednesday morning and you need to pay more and get up in the early morning. Or you can go with me for free instead.

William: Yes, I do have two tickets if you want to go with me.

Peggy: But how about my boyfriend? I can't go to the concert without him. He is so ready for this concert. I enjoy listening to him sing and dance with the loud music.
