Oliver's Food Corner

February 28, 2018

Everyone loves milk tea, don't they? Well, I know I do! When I took a trip to Taiwan, I found one amazing Taiwanese drink there. People called it "pearl milk tea". After I drank it, I liked it a lot! I spent much time trying pearl milk tea at different stands, and I learned how to make it on my own. I got the recipe for it in Taiwan. If you want to make it at home, check this out.....

Dear Oliver,

I am a big fan of your blog, and I like most of your ideas about food. However, yesterday, I read something but I didn't really agree with you. You wrote about the food from where I was born, so I am sure no one knows it better than I do. How can Shake Shack be the best? I think you must go to Five Guys Burger House. They will show you what "the best" is!

Best Regards,
Rachel

Many couples just celebrated Valentine's Day together on February 14th. They had tasty meals at some romantic restaurants and gave flowers and presents to their boyfriends or girlfriends to show their love. It is easy to show love to our lovers, but breaking up with them is hard to do. Today our TV host, Jacky invites the famous relationship expert -Sandy Wu to talk about her new book.

Jacky: Could you tell us a little about your book?

Sandy: It is about a very important subject: breaking up.

Jacky: I believe some of us had the same experience before. Could you tell us a little more?

Sandy: The book tells the whole truth on what it feels like to break up with someone you love. It is the terrible feeling, and you may wonder if you can love again. Some people feel like the world is ending.

Jacky: How can someone finish this unhappy time?

Sandy: Remember that these feelings won't last forever. Although it may be hurtful now, things will improve with time. So, the key thing is never hurt yourself or anyone else.

Jacky: Thanks for your sharing, Sandy. It's happy to talk with you. My wife bought all of your books. She loves to read them!

Sandy: Thank you.

A long time ago, there were two friends Ben and Victor, they were living in a small town. One day they planned to visit a big city so they were passing through the forest. The forest was very dark and there were a lot of dangerous animals. Ben and Victor told each other that they would stay together because they would be safe in this way.

Just then, they saw a big bear. It began to move closer to them. They both scared. At that time, Victor climbed on a tall tree next to him and hid there. Ben didn't know how to climb trees, but he knew that bear never eat dead bodies. Ben acted like he is dead by lying down and stopped breathing.

When the bear came to Ben, it smelled his ears and thought it was a dead body. The bear slowly left. Victor came down and asked Ben what the bear said into his ears. Ben said, "The bear told me never trust someone who leaves his friend in danger. "
