(A) Today our teacher showed us the news with a picture of the sperm whale. I felt so sad when I read it. The whale was dead and washed by waves to the seashore. When scientists cut the whale, they discovered that there were many plastic wastes in its stomach. I think that is because people throw trash to the ocean, and all of the sea animals eat them and then die. The news also showed that every year many sea animals die due to the human pollution.

I hope I could have more ideas and more plans to clean the ocean and help sea animals. However, I think that people should stop making trash first. It is the true way to save the animals, the ocean, and the Earth.

(B) Every morning, more than twenty kids jog along the rice field at five o'clock. They are little baseball players in a small town of Hualien. These kids have strong love of baseball, and have a dream: To become a famous baseball player in the future!

Most of them are from single parent families or live with their grandparents because their parents have to work in other cities. Some of them have no money for school, so it's hard for them to spend money playing baseball.

Some people got to know about that, and built a place for the kids. The kids can stay there after school and practice baseball every day. They also lead kids to help farmers planting rice on weekends and sell it by their own.

If you think that life is always full of troubles, think about these kids. They may have more troubles than us, however, they still work hard for their hopes, and always with smiles. If we buy more dream-come-true rice, they will get close to dream-come-true!

Day after day they waited for someone to find them. They had no food or fresh water. They became weak. One man nearly died. On the fourth day, a fisherman found them. He gave them food and water and then took them to a city on a large island. From there, they all flew home.

Q14: How did the people feel on the third day?
