Donna and Albert are at a hash run. Albert is new to hashing, so Donna goes over a few basic things. She tells Albert that hashing is a mix of running, finding the way, meeting new people, and partying. They have to wait for the rabbit, the front runner, to set the path for people to follow. He or she marks the path with flour, paper, or other things. After a few minutes, Albert and Donna start hashing. They see three arrows in a row. The three arrows mean they are on the right path. They run through a rice field and a forest. Albert thinks hashing is a really fun sport.
